We don't compromise on quality.

As one of the UK's leading window and door hardware manufacturers, we have an unrivalled reputation for high quality design and technical innovation.

Our hardware is manufactured to internationally recognised standards. Every product is quality checked during production, before shipping and again on arrival. So, you can be sure that every product is perfect, from how the hardware feels in your hand through to its functionality and finish - no bubbles, no ripples, not even the slightest blemish.

That's why we confidently stamp every box with our mark of quality.

Rest assured that our colours will always be consistent across every product, style and finish. Our strict manufacturing and quality processes ensure the same finish every time and not just on a single production batch.

ATTENTION TO THE SMALLEST DETAIL

At Fab & Fix, we give the smallest details our full attention to ensure we deliver a perfect product on every door and window.

- Every product is packaged with the same attention to detail that we use during the manufacturing process.
- All parts are supplied with fixings in separate chambers to ensure no scratching of parts during transit.
- There's nothing worse than a beautiful handle and different coloured screws. With Fab&Fix, all our screwheads coordinate with the hardware.
- We know that all doors are not the same, which is why our door handles are supplied with a wider backplate to suit cylinder guards.
- Care instructions are supplied with every product to ensure that the hardware is maintained in optimal condition.
- Supplied fully assembled so there's no need to fit springs or levers.

Hardex finish is harder than you think.

HARDEX
PATENTED
FINISH

Each piece of hardware is engineered for enhanced strength and durability, whatever your style preference. The key to this enhancement is Hardex, an invisible skin that creates unmatched resilience. Hardex finishes offer exceptional resilience and durability.

It all starts with the expertise of our design engineers and tool makers - only the most refined castings make the grade for a Hardex coat. Time is then of the essence, it takes over 24 hours to perfect a single handle. Meticulous preparation of the surface material is followed by a complex series of chemical baths, each submersion calculated to the second. Now the product is ready for Hardex to be applied before curing in extreme temperatures. It's a lot of effort but we hope you'll agree it's worth it.

Testing beyond salt spray.

30-YEAR PROVEN FIELD PERFORMANCE

1000 HOURS PROHESION TESTING

We know that when a door or window looks great, it needs to stay that way, so it's imperative our products lead the way in anti-corrosion and performance standards.

The ultimate hardware requires the ultimate test, so we moved on from neutral salt spray testing (NSST) a long time ago as it isn't representative of real world conditions. Instead, we use far more rigorous prohesion testing to put Hardex through its paces. This combines an electrolyte spray sequence with drying cycles at high temperatures to concentrate salt deposits on the hardware.

Prohesion testing, which is designed to expose even the slightest of coating weaknesses, is the only method of corrosion testing to provide real peace of mind when it comes to ensuring long-lasting performance in the real world.

Hardex can sail through 1000 hours of this barrage, confirming it's the most durable finish on the market. However, there's still no replacement for the rigours of the field and Fab&Fix products have racked up plenty of test hours there too - the Fab&Fix brand is 30 years old.
